

GAMBLERS TOO WILY FOR PIGEON

Fail to Bite When Police Are Near and So Escape.

THOSE ARRESTED ARE FINED OFFICERS NOW THINKING UP NEW SCHEME FOR ARREST.

Had a scheme concocted by the police worked as it was expected to, several more gambling houses would have been added to the list of those raided Thursday night. But the lookouts in some of the places were so sharp that the officers and they escaped, although there were "games" running at full blast just behind screen doors—if the police had only known.

The scheme evolved by the police to trap the wily gamblers was this: A man who, it is said, has been friendly to the gamblers and has had access to most of the places, changed his appearance through the process of a shave and was given the exalted position of stool pigeon. Late in the evening this man, with a squad of policemen at his coat tails, started out on the still hunt. To the Sheep Ranch they betook themselves first.

While the officers hid away within easy hearing the pigeon, with an anxious look on his face, approached the door and gave the double rap. Of the lookout who answered the door, he innocently inquired if his friend was there.

"Who is your friend?" inquired the lookout.

"John Doe Somebody," replied the pigeon. "He promised to meet me here."

Pigeon looked innocent enough and the lookout told him to come in and see if his friend was there. In he went, spied the games going, and stepping out gave the cue to the police. The same trick was worked at the West Temple street club. Several well-known people were "bucking the tiger" in this place, but when the police got in they were only looking on, and the man whose business it is to be arrested under such circumstances gave himself into the hands of the officers. Then the officers went to another place. But the lookout was rather too inquisitive as to who the sought-for friend might be. The answer was that the stool pigeon didn't want to ally suspicion and while a lucky player was scooping in the chips just behind the screens, the door went to with a bang and the stool pigeon heard a voice from the inside saying, "I think your friend is somewhere else. You had better move on."

The experiment was repeated at one or two other places with the same result and the officers ambled back to the police station to confound up another scheme.

James Bessley and Will Jones pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Diehl to the charge of keeping gambling houses and were fined $100 each. Dan Smith and Henry Clay, two knights of the green cloth employed in these houses, were requested to leave $50 apiece with the clerk of the court. The other men who were found in the houses gambling were admonished and turned loose.

Local Briefs

BANK CLEARINGS.—Yesterday's bank clearings were $467,002. For the same day last year they were $470,000.

BURDEN WAS BOOZE.—John Foster, a burly negro, had taken up the white man's burden, but was unable to get home with it. He was found by a policeman on Commercial street overcome from the effects of his task and was taken to the police station to rest up for a while.

BROGUE BETRAYED HIM.—Mike Cavanaugh claimed to be a man of strong nobility, but had a brogue that would shame Mr. Dooley. The judge gave him fifteen days in the city's repository for the wicked.

BROKE HER ARM.—Mrs. E. M. Lyman met with a painful accident yesterday morning. After alighting from a car on Second street, she stepped on her daughter, Mrs. W. L. King, she slipped on the ice and fell, breaking the two bones of the left arm just about the wrist. Dr. Joseph S. Richards was called and set the injured limb, and last evening Mrs. Lyman was resting as easily as could be expected. She is at the home of Judge Williams.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.—Diphtheria and smallpox are playing all manner of pranks with Horace Smith, the clerk of the city board of health. Thursday was thankful that no smallpox patients were reported, and regretted the number of diphtheria cases. Yesterday patients were reported. They follow: Mrs. V. G. Gilmer, aged 35, 25 West Fifth South street, and Emma Duggan, aged 22, 255 South Second West street.

HE KNOWS. From the Dark Orient He Delves In Periods of the Past.

They May Lose What Is Left of Their Home.

MORTGAGE ON THE PROPERTY PLANS TO RELIEVE DISTRESS OF THE FIRE SUFFERERS.

The family of Alfred Bell, whose home was destroyed by fire a few mornings ago is having its share of bad luck and hardships. Having barely escaped with their lives from the flames that destroyed practically all of their worldly possessions, they are now in circumstances that, but for the assistance of kind friends, would be serious. With their home only partially paid for and a mortgage upon it that is about due, it looks as if even the burned wreckage might not be left to them.

When the fire had been extinguished it was found that those who escaped barefooted and in only their night clothes had not enough clothing left to cover their bodies. The house was so badly damaged that there was no place in it where they could sleep.

With no insurance on the house, and scarcely enough on the contents to replace one-third of it, the question of how the home is to be replaced and the necessities of life are to be provided for immediate needs is a serious one.

Caring For Family. Kind friends in the neighborhood have taken members of the first-stricken family into their homes and provided them with rooms to sleep in until some permanent arrangement can be made. From the same sources the members of the family have been supplied with clothing for the time being. In the kitchen of the burned building the family has fitted up a place to cook and eat, and provisions to assist them in their affairs. Plans for the future have been supplied by neighbors.

Even with this assistance the situation for Mr. Bell is a dark one. He purchased his home only a short time ago, and there is a debt hanging over it amounting to $2,800. To secure this he gave a mortgage on the house, and now, since the fire, it is claimed that the holder of the mortgage is trying to foreclose. If this is done, it will leave the family without even the remnants of a home.

Plans For a Fund. The bishop of the ward in which Mr. Bell resides has taken himself the case of the family and a movement is on foot to raise a fund to be presented to Mr. Bell to assist him in saving his home and replacing so far as he can the lost contents.

The fire is not the first misfortune that has overtaken Mr. Bell recently. He was the owner of the old State street livery stable that was destroyed by fire last night. He lost much of the property stored in it. A mortgage was held on that place and a later fire destroyed the stable, and the second destruction of the stable, it was foreclosed and Mr. Bell lost heavily by it. He was just beginning to get on the comfortable side when the second disaster overtook him, causing the greatest loss of all.
